

Dual-core outdoor optical cable manufacturers

AI Overview

OWIRE, Corning, CommScope, Belden, and Anixter are leading manufacturers of dual-core (2-core) outdoor fiber optic cables. Key Manufacturers and Offerings

OWIRE specializes in 2-core outdoor fiber optic cables, engineered for durability, flexibility, and ease of installation. Their cables are tested for temperature resistance, tensile strength, and water ingress protection, and comply with international standards such as ITU-T G.652.D and IEC certifications. OWIRE provides global distribution and technical support, making their dual-core cables suitable for telecom networks, security systems, and rural connectivity projects.

Corning offers a wide range of outdoor fiber optic cables, including loose tube and ribbon designs. While their portfolio spans from single-fiber to high-count cables, they also provide low-fiber-count options suitable for dual-core applications. Corning cables are designed for aerial, duct, and direct burial installations, with features to withstand UV exposure, temperature fluctuations, and mechanical stress.

CommScope manufactures outside plant (OSP) fiber optic cables for outdoor use, including low-fiber-count options. Their cables are designed for rugged environments, supporting aerial, duct, and direct burial installations. CommScope emphasizes high performance, reliability, and compliance with industry standards.

Belden provides tight buffer and loose tube outdoor fiber optic cables, including 2-core and low-fiber-count designs. Their products are suitable for armored, direct burial, lashed aerial, and conduit installations, and are tested for compliance with ETL, UL, and National Electric Code standards. Belden cables are available in both dry and gel-filled constructions for harsh outdoor environments.

Anixter distributes a variety of armored and dielectric outdoor fiber optic cables, including low-fiber-count...
